in Westboro, at the Reformatory School, the authorisees have flogged refractory boys and put them int the sweat-box, and then wondered because they did not turn out well.

We have been reminded by the story of the judge who declared that he proposed to reform the Bench, and that his decisions should be "neither partial nor impartial," of a ciergyman who delivered his prayers into numerous blunders. Mr. Moody is not willing to admit that Boston is very peculiar place, and therein makes a fatal mistake and impedes the progress of the revival. If he had attended a meeting of the Radical Club or watched the ditte as they chapped their bands when Miss Von Hil-lern made her fifty miles a day as a pedestrian, or listened to the discussions of the various women's clubs, where nothing but Greek or Chaldaic is spoken, he would have seen his mistake and taken his texts from the Veda instead of the Bible. It was simply proposterous in the great evangelist to read the G as though they were all true, when every Boston girl could tell him the volume and page in the literature of China and India from which every verse was pilfered. Some people never will learn from experience, and so Mr. Moody pounds away just as though the Bible were as true in Boston as it is in New York.

The Presbyterian ministers of Scotland preach very long sermons. At the death of one them recently s large pile of MSS, was disposed of to a speculator, who blandly said that he proposed to cut them in two, say at eighthiy or minthly, put an appropriate text on the last half, and dispose of them at reasonable prices to clerical fledgings, or to incumbents of a larger growth, who took life so easily that intellectual strain of composition was a dangerous experiment. A minister might thus buy a couple of hundred of sermons, with a carefully prepared index attached, and flash his eloquence over the delighted heads of a wondering crowd at a cheap rate. What a comfort to listen to a sermon on the text "Thou shalt not steal," knowing that all the arguments against theft were themselves stolen! How forting in sorrow these condolences which have been purchased at tenpence a paragraph must be ! When we read such things we are more than balf inclined to believe that even clergymen are human.

English grammar is enough to drive a foreigner mad. The highway of general rules is sometimes so suddenly cut up into intricate and dangerous sheep paths of exceptions and idioms and irregularities that suicide takes the form of a fascinating mania, if not of a moral duty. What crimes have been committed in the despair which succeeds the attempt to master the difficulties of the plural number no man can even guess.

Now, remember, though bouse in the plural is nouses, The plural of mouse Should be mice, and not mouses.

Some men have discovered that there is not only a plural number in grammar, but also in morals, for when the man who wrote the foregoing mildly con-

All of which goes to prove That grammar a farce is; For where is the plural Of rum and molasses?

The answer comes from the lips of one who has had large experience with the flery extra : of sugar cane :-The plural, we say,
Of rum don't us trouble;
Take one glass too much
And you're sure to see double.

There is very little sense in praying that the Lord will do for you what you can easily do for yourself, if you only have the mind to. The secret of success in prayer is found in this distich:-

With this hand work and with the other pray, and God will bless them both from day to day.

Woman is an imitative animal. She has a tendency to do whatever she sees her neighbor do If Mrs Jones wears diamonds, or comes out in a new velvet costume, or rolls along the avenue in a landau with veilow wheels, the effect on the mind of Mrs. Brown, who lives opposite, is that of a contagious disease. She suffers from an acute and dangerous attack of longer velvet train and coach wheels of a brighter yel-

The male is also afflicted in the same way to a certain degree. Nearly every one can recollect the suffering he went through in order to learn to smoke like other people. The picture of our early experiences is stamped on our memory in vivid outlines. We were determined to be like other folks, and procured a long pipe and a paper of the best tobacco. For a few brief moments our happiness was complete. After that a film came over our eyes, liquid agony burst from every pore, and we retired to the seclusion of our inst chamber to perform the rites of a pioneer in a new cause. On the whole it costs less to do as you have a mind to than to do as other people tell you to. George Francis Irain seems to be the only man of the great company of evolutionists who is personally experiencing the advantages of the various stages of psychological progress. He is undergoing such rapid changes that he declares he does not know his own mind during any five consecutive minutes. He has withdrawn from the maelstrom of politics to the serene and pastoral joys of Union square. He does not wish any man or woman to speak to him lest his contact with their moral atmosphere should impede the evolu-tionary processes, but he is willing to talk to children and explain to their unprejudiced minds the volcanic theory of protoplasmic development. This tenderclasses, and expects that the next generation will be properly trained. If some other politicians should retire from active duty and sit in the sunshine of Union square the country might be saved. We have laughed again and again over the logic of the poor colored slave who was summoned to h's master's dying bed and told that in consideration of his faithful and lifelong services he should be-freed ? no: placed in the white man's vault when he died. He refused the honor, because, forsooth, when Satan came round to wake up his own he might make a mistake and wake up the wrong man. He was willing to serve his master during life, but in death he wanted to be alone, so that when his name was called nobody could claim his place. The curious part of the story is that he seemed to be reasonably sure of the white man's

The Baptists bave recently discussed and settled : very important question. It is now definitely known that the millions of heathen are to be eternally damned for not knowing what it has heretefore been impossible for them to find out. During the discussion some one asked if a rich man who believes this would not meet with the same condemnation if he re fused to give his money to send missionaries among continues to ride in his carriage on the avenue and lets the heathen take their chances. Such a sight, after such a declaration of belief, is enough to make an infidel teel that if he isn't right he ought to be.

The Examiner and Chronicle indulges in a little ordination of Rev. Mr. Havnes, who has just entered the Baptist ministry. The gentieman was ordained according to the forms of the Methodist Church, but when he changed his denominational relations it was decreed that his ordination was invalid. We simply suggested that when a man is consecrated by branch of the Christian Church, and changes his field of labor, his consecration holds good if we are all brethren, as we pretend to be. The Examiner and Chronicle says he was ordained as a Methodist, and We humbly confess our error. We supposed that he was ordained to the Christian ministry. hat he went to work in the Methodist branch of it If, however, he was made nothing but a Methodist, and not a Christian, he should certainly be ordained over again. Let us not have a second blunder, though. This Baptist only. We are heartily sorry to have been in boring so long under the deluxion that if a man was a Christian he might possibly be a Baptist also.

BAPTIST. Not one-half of the churches in this State or in Eastern New Jersey have given anything to the Baptist Home Mission Society this ecclesiastical year now closing. The secretary makes his appeal. A penny a day for the cause of missions from the Baptiste of this

Perhaps one of the most interesting things, in a smaller way, which have taken place in England of late, is the novel act of the Bishop of Manchester in addressing the actors and actresses of the Manchester theatres, from the stage of the theatres themselves, in connection with the mission now going on in his diorese. He says no Bishop has ever preached from such a pulpit before; but it is a very sensible idea, and may do good.

A correspondent of the Church Journal sends the following amusing farce of vestry elections from the diocese of Easton:—

"Easter Monday was signalized again by the little annual farce enacted throughout the two Maryland dioceses—the vestry elections. The meeting of registered voiers of the parish, for which our curious old vestry law' calls, consisted of three of the vestrymen and the rector. They in due form of law voted out four of the old vestry and voted them in again! This was all. REFORMED (DUTCH).

The Rev. W. H. De Hart, late moderator of the Classis of New York, begins his pastorate to-day with the Reformed Church at Jamaica.

The reception to Rev. William Lloyd, on Thursday evening, was an ovasion, and unique in its way. Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopanians, reformed and unreformed, Congregationalists and Dutch Reformed, uningled pleasantly together in the pulpit and in the pews, and extended to the new pastor of Madison Avenue Reformed Church a cordial welcome and hearty God-speci in his work.

Dr. E. S. Porter, of Brooklyn, and the Rev. Mr. Alliger were expected to read essays on Tuesday evening before the Long island North Cinasis upon the duty of Christians toward local and national politics, and the claims of the Church upon the benevolent. Neither of them appeared, and the Classis, without knowing or asking the reason of their absence, passed a vote of consure upon them. An unchristian method of doing an unchristian act.

The late Dr. Muhlenberg belonged not alone to the Protestant Episcopal Church. His life and services were for Christ and homanity. Hence every church body has taken some notice of his decease. The North Chassis of Long Island last week paid a fitting tribute to his memory. They considered it both honorable and grand to have had such a man in the ministry, who, like his master, went about doing good. Dr. Fairchild deemed him one of the most beautiful Christian characters that has ever appeared among us, and his life and labors a precious boon to the Church and a glorious example to the ministry.

TEMPLE EMANUEL. DR. GOTTHEIL'S DEFENCE OF THE TREATMENT

OF JESUS CHRIST BY THE JEWS. Dr. Gottheil delivered another lecture of the course called forth by the Easter sermons yesterday morning. He began by saying:—Some time ago, one of the most eminent Christian scholars of this city asked me, after many apologies for any implied offence in the ques-tion, whether I would not authorize him to deny an assertion he had beard made from his childhood, to the effect that the first thing a Hebrew child is taugh in religion is to consider Jesus an imposter, and to despise and hate him as the enemy of his race. I told my friend all that I knew of this supposed first principle of religious instruction in Judaism. This conversation I had nearly forgotten, but it was recalled to me when read the assertion recently made that "Jesus of Nazareth fell a victim to Hebrew hatred." One reverence brother was so certain of it that he used it as part o the resurrection. "Hebrew hatred would surely have defeated every attempt at deception." Although we repudiate all responsibility for what our lathers did 1,500 years or even half a century ago, yes aimple justice compels us to say that there never existed among the Jews anything that can at all be considered a national hatred of the Nazarene—that is to say, before the time the Christians themselves made the name hateful in our lathers' lives by the cruel persecutions perpertated for His sake. Leaving the crucitixon for the present on one side—for its justice must be considered on legal grounds only—the Jews have no reason to be sahamed of their conduct own has been been as the crucitixon for the present on one side—for the legal hat have no reason to be sahamed of their conduct own have no reason to be sahamed of their conduct own have been an ask pardon; we can come before the world with uplitted laces.

Pacor or His Assertions

Hy assertions may sound rather bold, and you may sak for proof. I shall not quote rabbinical teachings. I shall take my stand on the New Testament, being quite sure that an impartial examiner of this record received throughout with respect, and inserted to with a patience and respect which He Himself never seems to have shown to His objectors. Unfortunately, His claims to Messiaship, and, what is still more, to sonship with God, in a peculiar and exceptional sense of the word, which was bissphemy in the eye of Hebrew law as it then stood, laid upon the leaders of the people the san necessity of arraigning Him before the highest judicial court of the land, and mictimen and sentence were no proof of personal malice? TESTINOSY OF ARTHERS.

Four narratives of the, life of the new teacher have been preserved. The first of these, the goopel according to Matthew is admitted by most scholars to be the critical, and for that reason the most faithful exponent of the feeling which prevailed. What do we find in that narrative of Matthew's as regards the people at large? The candid reader must be struck by the uniform kindness and affection wi

An Alleged Bond Robber Extradited to the Hub.

COLLAPSED HOOPS AND BUSTLES.

What Constitutes a Contempt in Bankruptey Proceedings.

ohue, yesterday, in the habeas corpus of William Vos-burgh, whom the police describe to be a well known professional bond robber, although the appearance of the prisoner indicates the bearing of a gentleman merchant. The accused was under arrest for being a participant in a robbery of $8,000 worth of bonds from the coat of a gentleman named William Geary, in Boswho appeared on behalf of Vosburgh, filed a sworn waverse denying in the whole that Vosburgh either committed the larceny or was in Boston at the time the larceny was committed, and at counsel's solicitation Cierk of the Court, to act as referee to take proof under the traverse. The examination on behalf of the people was conducted by Mr. Lesry.

Robert C. Brown, a plamber, of Harlem, Mr. J. London, hatter, of Union square, James Sperling, a Park policeman, and twelve other witnesses all testified that Vosburgh was in the city of New York, at Point View House, 111th street and St. Nicholas avenue, on the day of the alleged larceny, and that they had seen him during that day. Officer Ham, of Boston, on the part of the prosecution, testined that Vosburgh was the person named in the indictment, and that Miss Geary, one of the compainant's witnesses, awore before the Suffolk county Grand Jury that the prisoner was one of the perty who stole the bonds. On cross-examination by Mr. Howe, it was admitted that the lady testified to Vosburgh's identity by means of a photograph which had been shown her by Policeman Ham. Counsel theh made a forcible appear to Judge Dononue, strongly animadverting on the crying injustice that would be done his client by removing him from a State where all his witnesses resided to a foreign one. He thought it time that the attention of Congress and the Legislature should be attracted to a law which permitted the extradition of clearly innocent people when Clerk of the Court, to act as referee to take proof unthought it time that the attention of Congress and the Legislature should be attracted to a law which permitted the extradition of cienty innocent people when they had means at hand to prove their guiltiessness. He had no doubt that when Vosburgh was taken to Boston it would become apparent that a great mistake had been made regarding his identity, but in the meantime a grievous wrong would be enacted in his being taken from here.

Juge Donohue coincided with counsel as to the unfairness of the law which was on the statute books and which prevented him from examining into the evidence of the case of a prisoner demanded on extradition; but while the law was in force it must be respected and no alternative was left but to order Vosburgh to proceed to Boston with the Boston officials. These gentlemen nereupon took charge of the much litigated accused and started at once to catch the next train for Boston.

A BANKRUPT AND HIS ASSIGNEE. In the matter of Messrs. Mooney & Co., who failed contempt in bankruptcy proceedings has had two different constructions, and is now set at rest by a decision by Judge Johnson on appeal from a decision from an order by Judge Blatchford. In December, 1875, the assignee of Messrs. Mooney & Co. applied to Judge Blatchford for an order compelling the bankrupts to pay over to him about $15,000 which alleged the bankrupts had drawn from he alleged the bankrupts had drawn from their business immediately before their failure and secreted from him as assignee. The application was referred to Register Dayton to take testimony and report back to the District Court with the register's opinion, which was done, the Register's opinion being that the bankrupts had in their possassion $6,600, and that they should be ordered to pay that over to the assignee or be committed for coutempt. Messra. Blumenstiel & Asner, attorneys for the assignee, then moved, before Judge Blatchford, upon the Register's opinion, for confirmation of his report and for the order which he held the assignee was entitled to. Mr. Richard S. Newcombe, counsel for the bankrupts, opposed the motion upon the ground that the testimony did not warrant the Register's findings; and further, even though the bankrupts had in six months before their failure used twice as much as they had in the proceeding entire year, yet if they stated they had used that for extraordinary purposes, their answers were, in the absence of direct impeachment, conclusive, Judge Blatchford refused to concur in the opinion of the register, when an appeal was taken by the assignee to the Circuit Court, which, after a very lengthy argument, was declated by Judge Johnson affirming the opinion of Judge Blatchford and dismissing the proceedings by the assignee.

MARITAL TROUBLES.

In the crim. con. suit brought by Joseph Boyden against W. Haskett Rhett, the full particulars of which were published in yesterday's HERALD, Judge Donohue has granted an order reducing the bail to $500. Judge Donohue yesterday granted a motion for alimony in sent the case to a referee to fix the amount. John J. Showter brought a suit for divorce against his wife, Adele L. Showber, and he was ordered to pay alimony. This, however, he falled to do, and as a result was imprisoned. Not laneying this practical compulsory mode of procedure he now wants to compromise the prisoned, mode of procedure he now wanted mode of procedure he now wanted matter. He says that if she will conhe will discontinue the suit. She says she has no objection to that provided he pays the back alimony. The matter was before Judge Dononue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday, and decision was re-

ABOUT HOOPSKIRTS AND BUSTLES. In the matter of the Woven Tape Skirt Company, a ew and important decision has just been rendered by Judge Westbrook, of the Supreme Court. In June 1876, a receiver was appointed of the property of that company, a portion of which, as he claimed, was a right to manufacture hoop skirts and bustles under a certain patent. One of the members of the corpora-tion, Mr. West, claimed that the receiver had only tion, Mr. West, claimed that the receiver had only the right to take the stock and outstandings of the company and commenced himself a busqness similar to that of the company—manu acturing hoop skirts. The motion referred to was made by Richard S. Newcombe for an order committing Mr.
West for contempt in interfering with the rights of the Receiver. Mr. Walden, who appeared for Mr.
West, argued that the receivership did not prevent Mr.
West from manufacturing under the patent, but Judge Westbrook holds that that was just as much an interierence as if Mr. West had forcibly interfered with the receiver in the possession of any of the stock of the company, and granted the motion. An appeal will be taken to the General Term.

SUMMARY OF LAW CASES. Substitutions of new attorneys in place of A. L. Macnab, who mysteriously disappeared some time ago, and who has never since been heard from, were yester day granted by Judge Donohue in two cases in which Macnab was counsel.

Judge Donobue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yes terday granted a commission to examine Manuel F. Diaz and Owen M. Long, of Panama, and Charles E. Wise, of Aspinwall, in a suit brought by William C. H. Swift and Eben Perry against the Panama Railroad Company and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. The Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents obtained an injunction against John Mauir. nim from giving further performances until he paid his incense fee. He failed to obey the order, and Judge Donobue yesterday granted a motion to punish him r contempt.

Margaret A. Lehe has brought a suit against George

Hughes and others, to recover back 390 shares of Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph stock, which, she alleges, was assigned to the defendants to noid in trust for her and which they refuse to deliver up. In case the stock cannot be returned she asks a judgment for $5,126 36. A return to the writ in the proceedings under a writ of habeas corpus, taken out on behalf of Charles Rivers, the vouthful acrobat, was yesterday filed by Colonel George H. Hart, who appears for the boy and Mr. Rivers, his father. The lad, as will be remembered, was taken from a circus by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and the present proceeding to obtain his custody was yesterday referred by Judge Donohue to Mr. William Sinciarr, to take testimony. The drat examination will take place to-morrow alternoon.

Application will shortly be made at the Surrogate's Office for letters of administration in the estate Louis B. Montant, one of the survivors of the Mohawk disaster, who died not long since.

Hirshberg vs. Doughty.—The motion to set saide the verdict on the Justice's minutes on the ground that no notice of non-payment of the check in suit was given to the drawer cannot be entertained. Thore was undisputed evidence on the trial that the check was duly presented at the bank when it was made payable for payment, and that payment was refused. It is also admitted in the answer of the defendant, the drawer of the check, that he stopped its payment. No proof of notice, therefore, of the presentment and non-payment of the check on defendant was required.

WASHINGTON, April 21, 1877.

The following cases were argued in the United States Supreme Court yesterday:

No. 32. United States v. Joseph—Error to the Supreme Court of New Mexico.—In this case Joseph settled on lands of the Pueblo tribe of Indians, contrary to the statute, as alleged in the declaration. The question was whether the Pueblo tribe, being citizens of the United States, were such a tribal body as contemplated by the statute, the defendant contending that it was not; that the members of the tribe, being citizens of the United States, their lands were no more affected by the statute under which the penalty was sought to be imposed than if they had been any other class of citizens. The Court so held, and the case is here on that question, the government maintaining that whether these Indians have made such progress in civilization as to relieve them from the tutelage imposed by the Indian Intercourse act is a political question, of which Congress alone can take cognizance. No. 33 presents the same question.

Solicitor General Phillips for the government; S. B. Ekkins for defendant.

No. 244. Sessions vs. Johnson et al.—Error to to the Supreme Court of Mussanchusetts.—This was an action brought by the defendants in error, assignees in bankruptey to recover the amount of three notes, the property of the bankrupts, which it was alleged were given to the plaintiff in error within six montas before the proceedings in bankruptcy, as alleged in fraud of the rights of creditors. The Court below so found, and the judgment was for the assignees. It is here contended that Sessions only received an amount equal to sums for which he was liable on account of the bankrupt, and that he should not be held for the amount.

Banks, for $87, and receiving in return $30 in cash.

A LONG LIFE.

A respectable colored woman known as "Aunt" Katte Williams died at Babylon, L. L., a day or two ago. It is represented that she was born in Babylon on the 18th of June, 1776, and that she was con quently nearly one hundred and one years old. For the past ten or twelve years she had been entirely blind, but her intellectual faculties were almost unim-paired up to the time of her death, her memory reaching back over nearly her entire lifetime. She was the widow of Nathaniel Williamson, familiarly known as "Uncle Nat," a pious colored man, and she was to many years a devout member of the Methodist Church
